Foreword

A student at Atkins High School is more than just a face in the crowd. He is an individual with individual differences and interests. The program at Atkins is designed to meet these individual tastes. The varied programs allow each student to develop himself in accordance with his own abilities and desires. Each available facility—academics, athletics, clubs, social contacts—shapes him to take his place in society.

The editors and staff cordially invite you to view the many faces of our school through the

Parent - Teacher Association

Mr. George Green, Program Chairman and Mr. George Allen, Financial Secretary are in deep thought over plans for the remainder of the year. Miss Jane Williams looks on.

The Parent-Teacher Association works to realize a common goal—that of helping students and teachers to have extra luxuries and necessities to make their school life brighter. Through organized fund-raising activities, the organization has purchased band uniforms, installed a radio in the teachers' lounge, and put a television set in the cafeteria. The group stimulates participation in extra curricula activities by offering awards in various areas.

At the helm of the organization is the dynamic Father Thomas Smith.

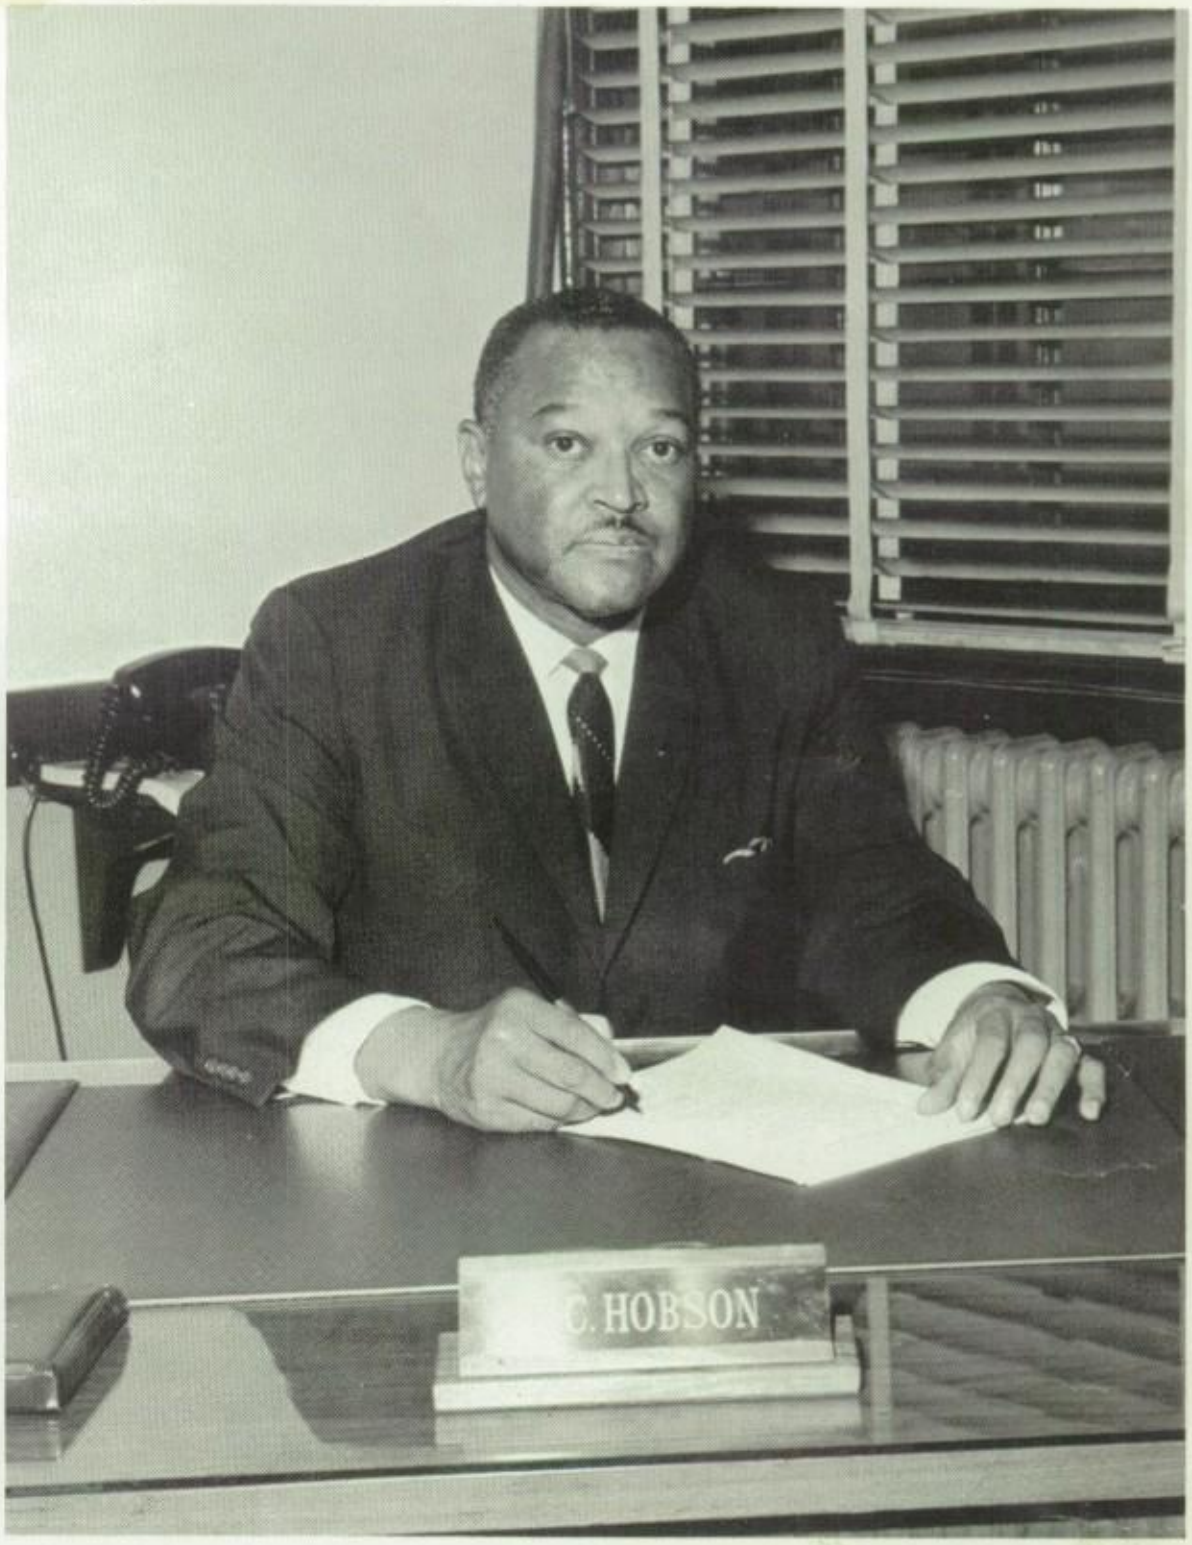
Face of Authority

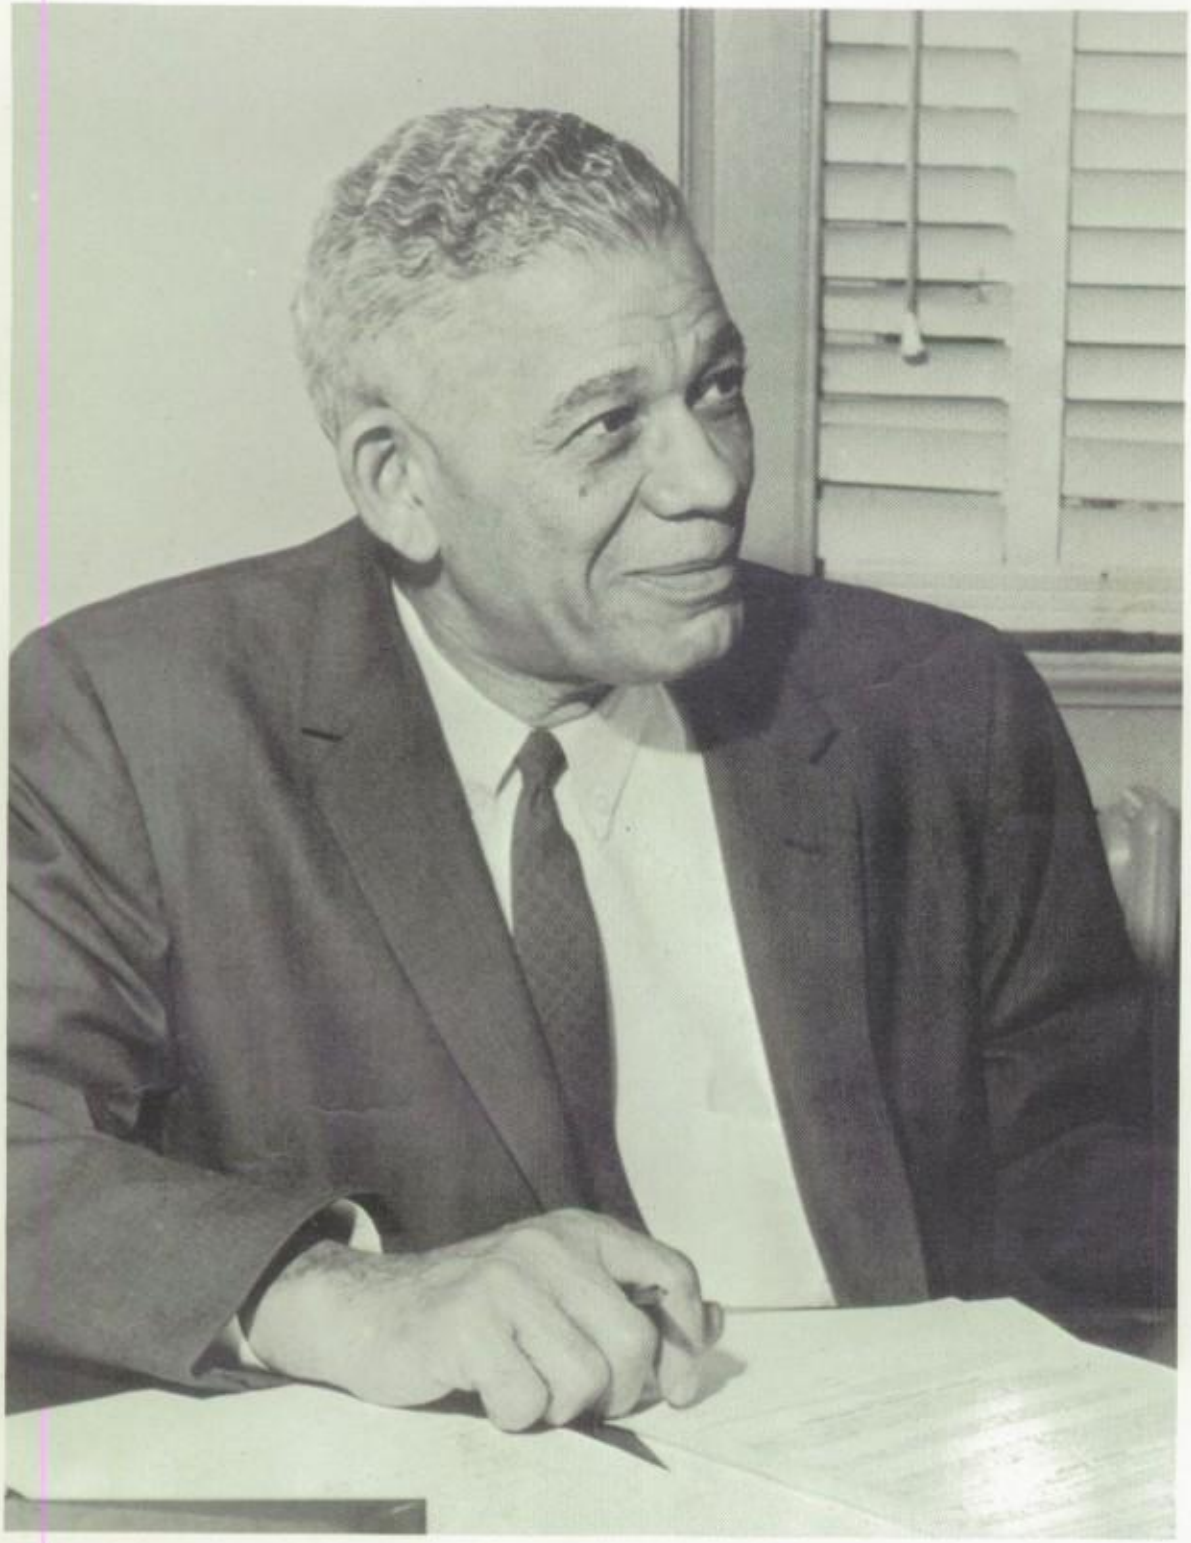
A principal's duties are varied. Here, he crowns Queen Pam.



Mr. D. C. Hobson, Principal

Principal Demby C. Hobson heads Atkins High, backed by the experience of twenty-two years in education administration. Mr. Hobson is new to Atkins this year, but he has already made his presence felt. As head of the administrative department he guides its educational and personnel policies. He coordinates the entire school program in a forthright manner. Mr. Hobson also plays a leading role in community activities.

The Role of Assistant Principal is Important



Mr. Ernest F. Wilson, Assistant Principal

Our able assistant principal is Mr. Ernest F. Wilson. He has the thankless job of disciplinarian, among other equally tiring tasks. In addition to his duties as assistant principal, Mr. Wilson teaches geometry.

Mr. Wilson checks absentee slips with one of his aides, Sharon Hairston.

Vital To Total Program

The Guidance Counselor, Mrs. Velma H. Friende, counsels one of the students on a personal problem.

The duties of the Guidance Counselor are many and varied. During the spring and fall, she helps the principal with the curriculum and with scheduling. She also guides and counsels the college-bound students; she arranges for and administers tests; and she arranges scholarships for deserving students.

Liked and admired by all, Mrs. Friende is an asset to the school.

Mrs. Emma Ingram is secretary in the Guidance Department.

Student Aides Help Relieve

Student clerical aides help Mrs. Friende and Mrs. Ingram in minimizing some of the small, tedious tasks in the guidance office. Guidance aides are Pamela Reynolds, Pamela Peay, Emma Young, and Lynda Stover.

Mr. Wilson's student assistants are Alma Peay, Lynda Stover, Sharon Hairston, and Lynette Jackson.

Secetarial Staff

Mrs. Alvonia Hill

secretary to the principal, does her work efficiently and well. In addition to being Mr. Hobson's "Girl Friday", she takes care of all finances.

Mrs. Julia Boler

helps to relieve Mrs. Hill of some of the pressing duties in the school office.

Mrs. Doris Solomon

is Mrs. Davis's right arm in the library. She assists with the many tasks involved in keeping a library running smoothly.

Miss Bertha Denita Reynolds is the secretary in the Social Services department. Her job includes filling out the many forms connected with a Federal program.

Members of the Social Services department are Miss D. Reynolds, Secretary; Mr. Marcellus Penn, Social Worker; and Mrs. Cornelia Kepley.

Physical Education Classes Develop Healthy Boys

Mr. George Green instructs boys in physical education to help them develop physically, mentally, emotionally, and socially. They participate in both indoor and outdoor sports all year long.

Mrs. Nancy McKee directs the girls in gymnastics, as well as sports. Girls learn laws of health and cleanliness through discussions and study.

Girls increase their grace and coordination and participate in several team sports under the instruction of Mrs. N. McKee.

English Department

The English Department seeks to strengthen the communication skills of Reading, Writing, Speaking, and Listening. Grammar and the basic fundamentals of the English language are stressed and are correlated with the program in literature.

As a part of the English program, Mrs. Lois Woodland teaches a course in Journalism, designed to foster an interest in the mechanics of newspaper writing.

Students in Mrs. W. V. Epps's 10th grade English class seem engrossed in the study of the ancient Greek and Roman myths.

Foreign Language

Vernell Warren and Lynette Jackson listen to native voices on tape in Mrs. Baird's French class.

Tommy Wright and Patricia Allen admire a piece of Roman sculpture created in Mrs. Gaines's Latin class.

Through the study of foreign languages, students come to realize that language is the key to understanding other peoples and their culture. At Atkins, students can enroll in French, Latin, or Spanish.

Vernal Brown demonstrates a map that she has made in Mrs. Manderline Scales's Spanish class.

Science

Science courses are systematically developed in the fields of matter and energy. In the sophomore year, students study biology–living organisms. Upper classmen study physics–the effect of energy on matter. Juniors and seniors also study chemistry to investigate the composition of matter and circumstances of chemical reactions.

Sophomores perform a biological experiment under the supervision of Mrs. Brake.

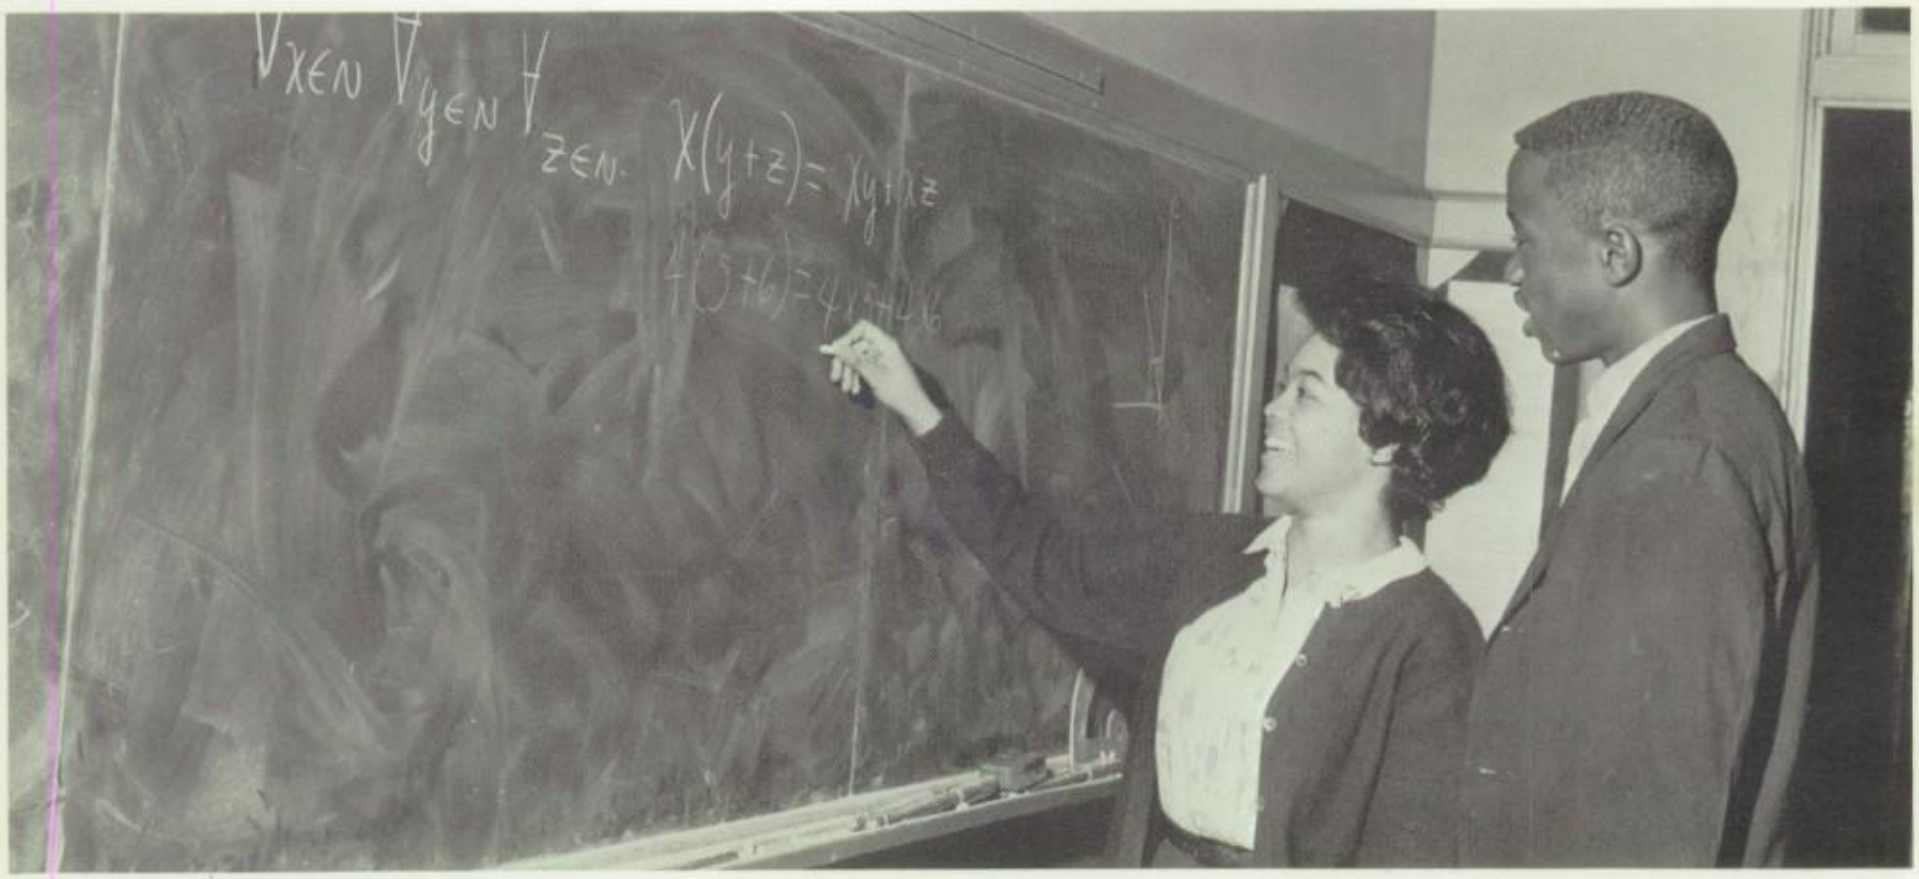
Brenda Green, Dennis Petree, and Ervin Stowe work together on an experiment in chemistry.

George Sims, Edward Lowe, Robert Williams, Hunter Hill, and Mamie Henley seem absorbed in a physics demonstration.

Mathematics and Mechanical Drawing

Mathematics courses at Atkins are challenging ones, as well as they are practical. Math courses offered are algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and general mathematics.

In mechanical drawing classes, students s the application of dimensions and specificat through free-hand sketching and graphical solutio



Elaine Smith prepares to work a math problem for Robert Brim.

Students are intent upon their work in mechanical drawing class.

Fine Arts

The band, which begins the year with football season, and ends with the spring festival, is the pride of the school.

The music department offers three avenues for students to develop in vocal and instrumental music–orchestra, band, and choir.

The course in art at Atkins enriches the students' powers of observation and encourages their expressions in tangible forms.

Douglas Hentz and Lewis Cornell create in art class.

Social S...

Studying the affairs of man, past and present, helps to form the basis of everyday living. Atkins offers a wide variety of social science courses, including psychology, world history, and U. History.

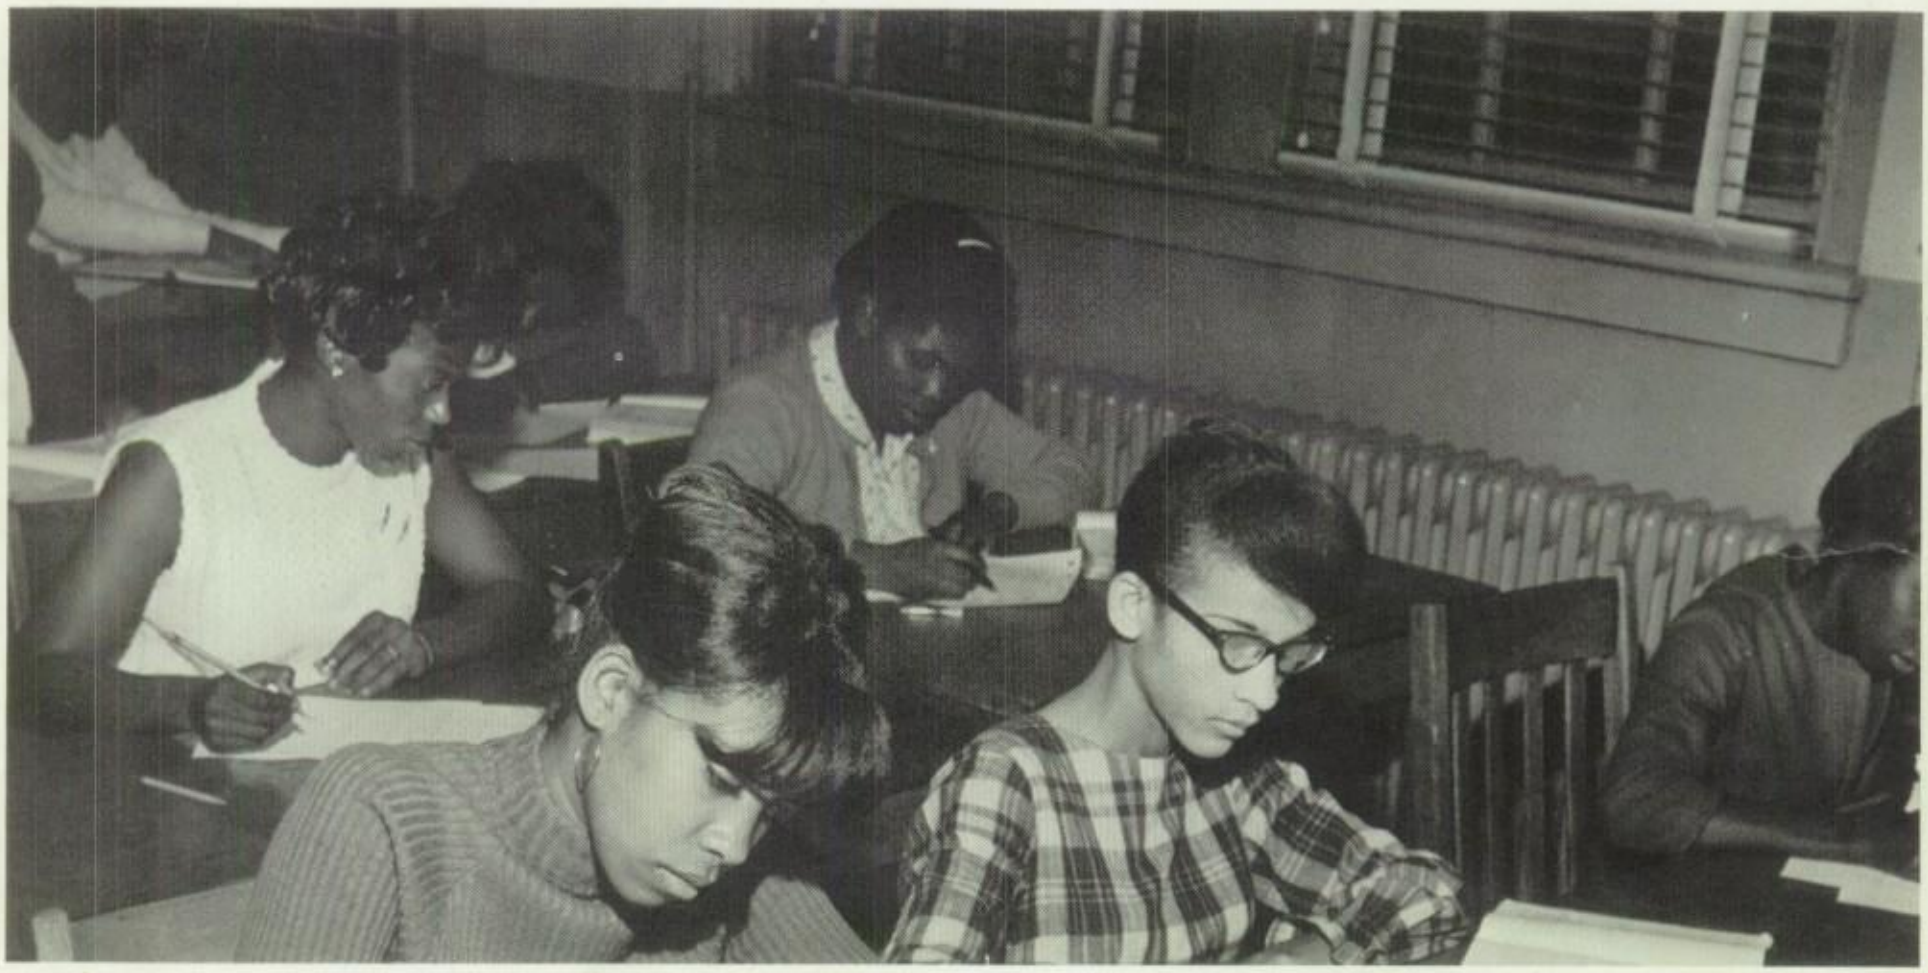
Terry Townsend, Rosalyn Crosson, and Melvin Jones locate a country in Mr. Stewart's world history class.

Beverly Cato, Deborah Moore, and Leo Cannon argue a point in psychology.

Business Education

purpose of the business department is to train competent personnel in business. Classes consist of ing, bookkeeping, and shorthand.

Numerous practice drills increase typing skill.



Long columns of figures hold the rapt attention of students in bookkeeping class.

Distributive Education

Distributive education gives students an opportunity to learn salesmanship of business by working on a regular job under the supervision of an employer. In addition to expert training, students receive wages.

The end product of the driver education co[illegible] is safe, competent drivers. Young people bet[illegible] 16 and 18 are required to have a driver educa[illegible] certificate.

The attractive bulletin board in Mr. Sawyer's room attracts the attention of Betty Lunn, Carlos Hill, and Pansy Kennedy.

June Garrett, Cynthia Rice, and Joe Payne receive in-the-car training.

Vocational Department

Vocational education courses at Atkins are many and varied. In these courses, students learn skills which prepare them for jobs after high school.

Students in brick masonry learn perfection through practice.

Home Economics prepares students for home management. Sewing is just one facet of the course.

These boys enjoy working on cars; therefore, auto mechanics is a "natural" for them.

Students develop ingenuity, manual dexterity, and basic creative talents in classes in Industrial Arts.

Mr. Bethea's tailoring students learn to m trousers, slacks, shirts, and other garments.

Ervin Moore and his companions refinish and shellac furniture in Industrial Arts.

Students in tailoring class fit a coat on form.

Chorus - Concert Band

The Atkins choir is active both in the school and the community. It furnishes music for assemblies, the Christmas program, and commencement. The choir also presents programs at churches throughout the city.

The concert band provides background music for the choir at Christmas and takes part in district and state music festivals.

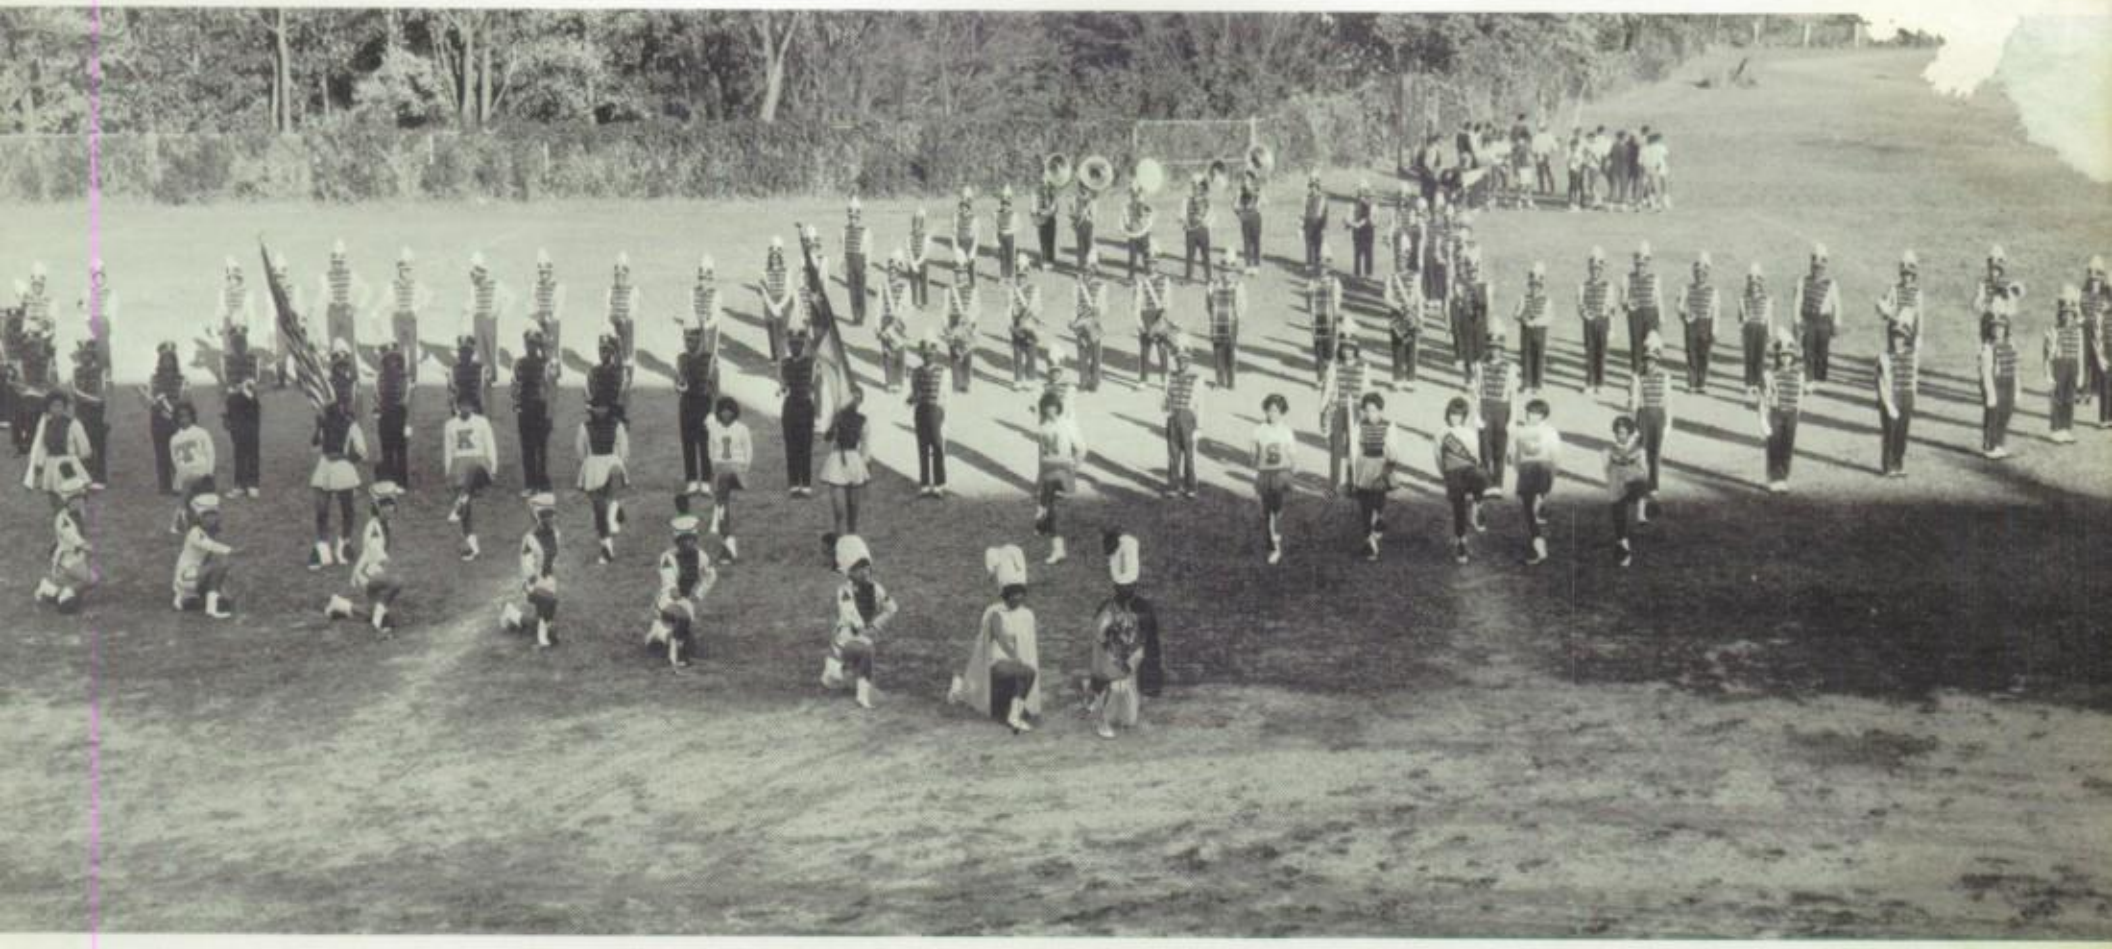
The choir renders all types of music with the precision of a professional group.

Music Hath Charms

The concert band demonstrates skill and provides beautiful music for many occasions.

Marching Band - Majorettes

The Atkins band, one of the finest in the state, has won many honors and awards. The band is ably dire by Mr. H. Wheeler.



The objectives of the course in band include teaching music in its cultural and social aspects, developing appreciation for music as well as skill, encouraging the use of music as a means of relaxation, and guiding gifted students into a fuller realization of their potential.

the Faces of Our Athletes

Whether team or individual, the athletes of Atkins always strive to perfect their skills.
Endless hours of training . . . practice . . .
tension . . . excitement . . .
the thrill of victory . . .
the sting of defeat . . .
rewarded with the personal satisfaction of having done one's best.

Junior Class Officers

Juniors find themselves on the middle rung of the ladder. They have lost that "green" look of the sophomores, but they have not yet attained the dignified air of the seniors. Juniors look forward to the big social event of the year, the Prom.

Junior class officers are: From top to bottom: Oswell Jackson, Camille Russell, Billy Friende, Carolyn McCall, and Andrea Mickle.

DEAR MARCELLA,
I'm not very good
At autographing books so I'll just be Frind. Stay sweet, nice and my Friend
Your Friend
William Campbell

While sliding down
the banister of success
Don't stick any chips up your CAREER.

Dear Coodie - Here's wishing you the best of luck and much success in the years to come.
A friend always

Dear Marcella,
When you sit on the thumbtack of life, you will surely rise to great higheS.
I wish you all the luck and happiness in the world.

Dear Marcella,

Knock at God's door with hands of prayer and he will see open it."
Character is not what men think you are, but what God knows you are." Things will begin to look right when you stop doing things wrong"
